The split has caused a major rift in the court, which is the highest anti-graft court in the Philippines. The Sandiganbayan is currently hearing the case of Arroyo, who is accused of graft and corruption. # Indonesia court fines poll agency $110M for failing to register voters

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A Philippine court has ordered the Indonesian Election Commission to pay a fine of $110 million for failing to register voters in the 2002 general election. The court said the commission was negligent in its duties and that the fine was a punishment for its failure to follow the law. The commission had argued that it was not responsible for the failure to register voters, but the court rejected this argument. The fine is the highest ever imposed on a government agency in the Philippines. The court also ordered the commission to pay the costs of the lawsuit. The commission has appealed the decision. The case is expected to set a precedent for future election disputes.

Indian PM announces troop reduction in troubled Kashmir

NEW DELHI, India, June 15 (AP) — Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee announced today that India would reduce the number of troops in Kashmir by 50,000 over the next three years, a move that would significantly reduce the Indian military presence in the troubled region.

Vajpayee said the reduction would be phased in over the next three years, with 15,000 troops being withdrawn by the end of 1998, 15,000 more by the end of 1999, and the final 20,000 by the end of 2000. He said the move was part of a broader effort to bring about a lasting peace in Kashmir.

The announcement came in the wake of a series of talks between Indian and Pakistani officials, which have led to a temporary reduction in hostilities along the border between the two countries. Vajpayee said the move was a sign of India's commitment to a peaceful resolution of the Kashmir issue.

The reduction of troops in Kashmir has been a long-standing demand of the Indian government, which has accused Pakistan of supporting militant groups in the region. Pakistan has denied these allegations, saying it is committed to a peaceful resolution of the issue.

The move is seen as a significant step towards de-escalating tensions in the region, but it also raises concerns about the security of the Indian military presence in Kashmir. Some analysts believe that the reduction of troops could lead to a resurgence of militant activity in the region.

POLITICAL THEORY

It is a common mistake to think of the political theory of the 19th century as a single, unified body of thought. In fact, it was a collection of many different schools of thought, each with its own set of principles and assumptions. The most influential of these schools were the liberal, conservative, and socialist traditions. Each of these traditions had its own set of principles and assumptions, and each of them was shaped by the social and political conditions of the time. The liberal tradition, for example, was based on the idea of individual rights and freedoms. The conservative tradition was based on the idea of tradition and hierarchy. The socialist tradition was based on the idea of class struggle and the need for social reform. These three traditions were the main forces shaping political theory in the 19th century, and they continue to influence political thought today.

The liberal tradition was the most influential of the three. It was based on the idea of individual rights and freedoms. The liberal tradition was shaped by the social and political conditions of the time, which were characterized by a growing emphasis on individualism and a growing awareness of the need for social reform. The liberal tradition was also shaped by the work of many influential thinkers, including John Locke, Immanuel Kant, and John Stuart Mill. These thinkers developed the principles of the liberal tradition, and they provided the intellectual foundation for the liberal movement. The liberal movement was a force for social and political reform, and it played a major role in shaping the modern world.

Figure 1 shows the results of the regression analysis. The dependent variable is the number of children in the household. The independent variables are the age of the head of household, the sex of the head of household, the education of the head of household, the occupation of the head of household, the number of children in the household, and the number of children in the household. The results show that the age of the head of household, the sex of the head of household, the education of the head of household, and the occupation of the head of household are all significant determinants of the number of children in the household. MODERN indigenous fashion is all about the strong, vibrant colors and patterns that are so much a part of the culture. It's a beautiful blend of traditional and modern, and it's a style that's becoming more and more popular. The best way to wear modern indigenous fashion is to mix it with your own style. You can wear a modern indigenous jacket over a t-shirt and jeans, or you can wear a modern indigenous dress with a modern indigenous bag. The key is to mix it with your own style.

• Don't overuse the word "and." The word "and" is the most common conjunction in the English language, and it's often used unnecessarily. Try to use it only when it's truly needed to connect two ideas. For example, "I went to the store and bought some milk" is better than "I went to the store and I bought some milk."
